Big Dig dispute: The Big Dig's top manager said Saturday that a top consultant was fired from the project over a possible conflict of interest, contradicting the man's claim that he resigned because he was stonewalled and can't vouch for the safety of the tunnels.

Massachusetts Turnpike Authority Chairman Matthew Amorello rejected allegations by George Tamaro, an internationally renowned engineer, that Big Dig managers denied him access to crucial information about the repair work done to leaky I-93 tunnels

Former Connecticut governor: Former Connecticut Gov. John Rowland's supporters predict he will rebound from his corruption conviction, make use of old contacts in Washington, find work as a consultant and possibly resume his efforts to help the state's cities.

But Rowland's critics and some of his old political colleagues say he faces an uncer-tain future as a convicted felon and disgraced former public official since being sentenced to prison Friday.

"My guess is that it's going to be very difficult for him after this. I think this is a stain he will have to bear for a long time. I don't think people will forget it very quickly," said Republican Senate Minority Leader Louis DeLuca.

Dead Florida girl: The registered sex offender who authorities say confessed to kid-napping and slaying 9-year-old Jessica Lunsford was returned to Florida in shackles Sunday and the little girl's father said he wished he could confront the killer

John Evander Couey was booked early Sunday on a probation violation and failure to register as a sex offender, according to officials. He was being held without bail Couey, 46, confessed to kidnapping and killing Jessica after taking a lie-detector test Friday in Georgia, officials said. The girl's body was found early Saturday, more than three weeks after she disappeared.

West Bank handover: Israel's defense minister said Sunday that Israel will soon hand over a second West Bank town to Palcontrol, pushing forward with peace efforts despite new violence that dealt a new challenge to a recent cease-fire. Commanders from the two sides planned to meet later Sunday to finalize the transfer of Tulkarem to Palestinian forces. Defense Minister Shaul Mofaz said the handover would take place on Monday, days after Isra-el withdrew its troops from Jericho.

U.N. war crimes trial: A senior Bosnian Serb general indicted for genocide in the 1995 massacre of some 8,000 Muslim men nd boys in Srebrenica is to surrender to the U.N. war crimes tribunal, the Serbian government said Sunday.

Vinko Pandurevic, a top fugitive since the end of the 1992-95 war in neighboring Bos nia, was to travel to the Netherlands on Wednesday to give himself up to the U.N. court at The Hague, the government said in a statement.

Possible violation of Mideast pact: An extensive aerial photography operation carried out for Israel's Defense Ministry has revealed considerable new building in Jewish settlements in the West Bank, an Israeli newspaper reported Sunday, an apparent vi-olation of Israeli obligations under a under a U.S.-backed Middle East peace plan.

Expansion of Israeli settlements runs counter to the "road map" peace plan, which calls for a complete freeze on settlement construction, including that resulting from natural population growth.

The Haaretz newspaper said the photography operation, completed in recent weeks, included all the Israeli settlements and authorized settlement outnosts in the West

Lebanon turmoil: Lebanese President Emile Lahoud will not bow to pressure from the anti-Syrian opposition to resign, a senior aide said Sunday, insisting that the leader still had parliament's confidence and would not leave a power vacuum.

The remarks by Rafik Shalala, Lahoud's media adviser, come amid a deepening political crisis in Lebanon since the Feb. 14 assassination of former Prime Minister Rafik Hariri. Shalala stressed that the president can be forced to step down only if he is impeached by Parliament for either violation of the constitution or high treason.

Protests in Pakistan: About 35,000 supporters of a religious alliance rallied in Karachi, Pakistan, on Sunday, many chanting slogans against President Gen. Pervez Musharraf and the United States "Death to Musharraf, death to America.

chanted participants of the rally organized by a six-party coalition of radical Islamic groups on a busy road in Karachi.

The alliance, which demands Musharraf step down as the army chief, made unexpected gains in parliamentary elections in 2002 mainly on a platform of opposition to the army general and the U.S. war against terrorism that ousted the Taliban militia from power in Afghanistan in late 2001.

FUKUOKA, Japan - A powerful magnitude-7.0 earthquake jolted southern Japan on Sunday, killing an elderly woman, injuring at least 400 people, and prompting authorities to evacuate half the residents of a tiny island near the epicenter.

Authorities issued a tsunami warning that was later canceled.

The temblor which hit west of Kvushu Island at 10:53 a.m., was centered about 5.5 miles below the seabed, Japan's Meteorological Agency said. Aftershocks followed - at least one a moderate magnitude-4.2 tremor — and the agency's Masahiro Yamamoto warned of more aftershocks measuring up to magnitude-6.

A magnitude-7 quake can potentially devastate heavily populated areas. But Sunday's temblor didn't directly hit the archipelago, and injuries and damage were minimized by Japan's quake-safe buildings and disaster-prepared population.

The worst damage occurred nearest the quake's epicenter, on Genkai island, where the shaking touched off landslides and leveled homes. About 120 Japanese troops flew to the island to offer food and medical aid, and to help evacuate more than 400 of the 850 residents to neighboring Kyushu.

Those evacuees joined some 1,500 others in temporary shelters in Fukuoka pre-

SASEBO NAVAL BASE, Japan -From base personnel gathered for morning worship services to those resting at home watching television, people here and throughout Kyushu Island experienced 30 to 60 seconds of shakes and jolts caused by a magnitude-7.0 earthquake Sunday morning.

Sasebo is in Nagasaki prefecture, about 100 miles southeast of Fukuoka, the hardest-hit city.

As the quake was felt shortly before 11 a.m., some bolted from Sasebo's chapel exits and down stairs outside the Community and Education Center. People were heard shouting, "What's happening?" and "Is everyone all right?"

We checked all around the building and there are no cracks or damages any where, so everyone can come back in and we'll hold services as planned," said Cmdr. Harvey Ranard, command chaplain, just after the earthquake.
"We are in one of the safest places we could be on base during this activity because this building is fairly new and built to withstand it," he added. There were no damages or injuries reported

Lt. Cmdr. John Bernard. Carrier Strike Group 5 spokesman, said the strike group "became aware of the earthquake soon after it occurred," but no U.S. ships - including the USS Kitty Hawk, which on Friday was on its way to a location off the South Korean coast to participate in the Foal Eagle exercise or aircraft were affected.

DJs' trip lifts spirits of airmen during Misawa deployment

MISAWA AIR BASE, Japan -Unless you're trying to book lodg-ing, eat at Grissom Dining Facility or go on a ski or snowboard trip sponsored by the base, it's easy to miss the 250 airmen deployed here from Cannon Air Force Base, N.M.

Since their arrival in January, the F-16 pilots, planes and maintainers have stepped quietly into the daily operations of the base, working side-by-side on the flight line and in the skies with their counterparts in the 35th Fighter Wing. The Cannon airmen are here for four months as part of an Air Force Aerospace Expeditionary Force rotation to support warfighting requirements from Pacific Combatant Commander Navy Adm. Thomas B. Fargo, officials said

While the deployment to northern Japan may be far from the frontlines of the war on terrorism and less austere than the typical desert tent city, the Cannon airmen say it's still a long way from their base in Clovis, N.M.

"It's not the Middle East, but it's still a long deployment," said Tech. Sgt. Jeff Anderson, a main-DJs Steve Rooney and Jeff Mc-Naughton, whose on-air name is "Duffy Moon" - visited the base and broadcast a live show three nights via a high-speed Internet connection back to New Mexico from the Misawa Inn.

"We were looking for a way to show support for the base and the airmen and what they do." McNaughton said.

On their commercial flight from the States, McNaughton and Rooney carted about 72 pounds of cards, letters, banners and a few boxes of Girl Scout cookies from schools around Can non, as well as written and audio greetings for specific airmen from family and friends, they

"It's awesome that they care enough about us to come over here," said Staff Sgt. Christopher Craig, an armament craftsman.

The letters from home were plastered on the walls: "It blows my mind how brave people like you are," wrote one fifth-grader. Another student wrote, "I hope we win in Irag.'

Craig and Staff Sgt. Shannon Tabor, a structural maintenance craftsman, said they never dreamed they'd get the call to deploy to Misawa, far from the ongoing operations in Iraq and Afghanistan.

"It was different to find out we were coming here and not going to the desert," Tabor said.

Though Cannon F-16 pilot Capt. Nate Ott goes by the call sign "Bullet," he's perfectly happy not having to worry about getting shot at during this deploy-

"From a flying standpoint, this is making us better aviators," he said. "We're all in the same dorm; we're spending a lot of time together. It not only gives us a chance to bond but a chance to talk about what we do and the way we fly.'

Col. John D. Posner, command-er of Cannon's 27th Fighter Wing, also paid a visit to Misawa last week with Rooney and Mc-Naughton. He said AEF deployments to Misawa are just as vital as those to other parts of the world. It builds the confidence of his airmen and demonstrates not only to them "but also a would-be adversary our capabilities" he said

Rebels kill 6 in attack on U.S., Iraq security forces

BY SAMEER N. YACOUB
The Associated Press

BAGHDAD — Insurgents targeted Iraqi and U.S. security forces with gunfire, suicide attacks and mortar rounds Sunday, killing six people including a U.S. soldier and an Iraqi corruption official — as the conflict moved into its third year since the U.S.-led invasion.

Insurgents also attacked coalition forces Sunday on the outskirts of Baghdad, and the resulting clashes left 24 militants dead and six soldiers wounded, the U.S. military said.

Neighbors Iraq and Jordan withdrew their highest-level diplomats from each others' territory as tensions between the two countries increase over the alleged involvement of a Jordanian in a deadly suicide bomb attack in the city of Hillah.

Separately, a Jordanian court sentenced Iraq's most-wanted terrorist, Abu-Musab al-Zarqawi, in absentia to 15 years in prison.

A bomb exploded early Sunday near the northern city of Kirkuk, killing a U.S. soldier and wounding three others, the U.S. military said in a statement.

Elsewhere in northern Iraq, a suicide bomber blew himself up inside a government compound in Mosul, killing Walid Kashmoula, the head of the Iraqi police anti-corruption department, officials said. Three others were wounded.

Al-Zarqawi's al-Qaida in Iraq group purportedly claimed responsibility for the attack in a message posted on an Islamic Web site known for carrying statements from extremist militant groups

People in Baghdad said saboteurs blew up a municipal building in a western neighborhood, reducing the two-story building to rubble.

A Humvee also was overturned on the highway to the airport. Witnesses said it was hit by a roadside bomb, but U.S. military officials were not available to comment.

Assailants leapt from their vehicle and unleashed gunfire on a policeman walking to work in Samarra, killing the man, said Maj, Sadoun Ahmed, a police official in the Sunni Triangle town some 60 miles north of Baghdad.

Police who went to collect the man's body also came under attack, sparking a gunfight that left three police injured along with a trio of attackers, who were arrested, police Lt. Oassim Mohammed said.

In the southern city of Basra, attackers targeted a police patrol with a roadside bomb, killing one civilian and injuring a policeman, police Col. Karim al-Zeidi said. Insurgents also lobbed mortar fire into a neighborhood just outside the walls of an Iraqi army base in the town of Mahmoudiyah, south of Baghdad, killing one civilian and injuring two others.

Explaining the tit-for-tat diplomatic withdrawals, Foreign Minister Hoshyar Zebari said Iraq's ambassador to Amman was being recalled for "consultations." Earlier, Jordan said it was doing the same to its highest official in Baghdad.

The decision followed a week of mounting anti-Jordanian sentiment after a newspaper reported that Jordanian Raed Mansour al-Banna carried out the bombing in Hillah, the single deadliest attack of Iraq's insurgency.

Also in Jordan, a military court sentenced al-Zarqawi, whose whereabouts are unknown, to 15 years in jail and a detained associate to three years behind bars Sunday for planning an attack on the Jordanian Embassy in Baghdad, the offices of the Jordanian military attache in Baghdad and unspecified American targets in Irao.

The court was told that the two Jordanians met in Iraq in November 2003 to plan an attack on the embassy following an August bombing on the same building that killed 18 people. Al-Zarqawi also has been accused of carrying out the August bombing.

Rumsfeld: Invading Iraq from the north would have helped squelch insurgency

BY SIOBHAN MCDONOUGH

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The level of insurgency in postwar Iraq wouldn't be so high if the U.S.-led coalition had been able to invade from the north, through Turkey, Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld said Sunday.

Rumsfeld told "Fox News Sunday" that if the United States had been able to get its 4th Infantry Division into northern Iraq through Turkey, more of Saddam's Baathist regime would have been captured or killed, diminishing the insurgency.

U.S. forces had to enter Iraq from the south, so by the time Baghdad was taken, much of Saddam's military and intelligence services had dissipated into the northern cities, Rumsfeld said.

"They're still, in a number of instances, still active," he

As Iraqi security forces develop, Rumsfeld said, they will take increasing responsibility and the insurgency will diminish over time. He estimated current Iraqi security forces at more than 145,000.

U.S. forces in Iraq are being reduced from 153,000 to 137,000 or 140,000, Rumsfeld said, although it's possible more security will have to be put into place when new elections take place next year.

Rumsfeld told ABC's "This Week" that at least 30 projects are under way to reduce stress on U.S. forces. For example, he said, a new national security personnel system allows for the use of fewer military people in civilian positions, and the Pentagon is rebalancing the active force with the reserve component.

"So far, we've only used in Iraq and Afghanistan something like 40 percent of the Guard and Reserve," he said. "It's not like everything's been used up."

Gen. Richard B. Myers, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told NBC's "Meet the Press" that the all-volunteer force is "working marvelously."

"I've served in the draft force, I've served in the volunteer force," he said. "The American public should not be at all confused about the volunteer force and how well it's performed."

On Fox, Rumsfeld defended his "old Europe" characterization of nations such as France and Germany that opposed U.S. policy in Iraq.

"That's not haunting me," he said. "I don't think it was a stunning comment, and it certainly wasn't in any way denigrating anything."

U.S. deaths in Iraq

The Associated Pre

As of Saturday, at least 1,519 members of the U.S. military have died since the beginning of the Iraq war in March 2003, according to an Associated Press count. At least 1,158 died as a result of hostile action, according to the Defense Department. The figures include four military civilians.

The AP count is six higher than the Defense Department's tally, last updated at 10 a.m. EST Friday.

The British military has reported 86 deaths; Italy, 21; Ukraine, 18; Poland, 17; Spain, 11; Bulgaria, eight; Slovakia, three; Estonia, Thailand and the Netherlands, two each; and Denmark, El Salvador, Hungary, Kazakhstan and Latvia one death each.

Permission for Abbasi to be taken to Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D.C., for treatment was being pursued through diplomatic and military channels, according to Dr. (Capt.) Matthew Carter of Company C. 203rd Forward Support Battalion, which operates the Teal clinic.

Carter had flown with the boy to Baghdad. On March 14, Abbasi was flown by helicopter from Baghdad to the nearby air base at Balad for what was believed to be a flight to Washington, Carter

But when it was discovered that approval had not yet been granted, the boy was returned to Baghdad the next day.

"There was a paperwork mix-up," Carter said a few days later. "It probably happens when one division is transferring a tank to another division. Nobody really knows who the tank belongs to.'

Abbasi was the grandson of a local sheik at a village near Bagouba. The sheik had been friendly with U.S. forces.

An Associated Press report Sunday said more than 200 were missing after days of torrential rains have sparked floods. The confirmed death toll from flooding stood at 24. That's in spite of a rescue effort by U.S. forces on Friday that saved at least dozens and perhaps hundreds - of residents trapped by rising waters in western Afghanistan.

Much of the country's soil is composed of clay and doesn't absorb water quickly. During the recent dry years, many people have moved into areas susceptible to flooding. U.S. bases, except for some muddy areas, have generally fared well.

Bagram Air Base, at an elevation of about 4,900 feet, has recorded 2.79 inches of rain so far in March and 3.92 inches in Feb. ruary — 1½ inches above average, Maddin said, And, with 10 days left in March, the total was just short of the monthly average. ## Rice calls on EU not to sell arms to China

BY ANNE GEARAN

BELJING — Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice suggested Sunday that European governments are irresponsible if they sell sophisticated weaponry to China that might one day be used against U.S. forces in the Pacific.

"It is the United States, not Europe, that is defending the Pacific," Rice said.

South Korea, Japan and the United States are all Pacific powers and all contribute resources to keep the Asia-Pacific region stable, Rice said.

The European Union may soon of this an arms embargo on China that was imposed after the deadly 1989 crackdown on pro-democracy protesters in Tianammen Square. Rice earlier said China's recent statements about a possible invasion of Taiwan should give the Europeans pause.

ropeans pause.

China passed a law this month codifying its intention to use military force against Taiwan should the island declare formal independence. Under its complicated policy on China and Taiwan, the United States is obligated to defend Taiwan against an attack from the mainland.

Rice left Seoul on Sunday for Beijing, where she sought further help from China in getting North Korea back to nuclear disarmament talks and aired U.S. concerns about Beijing's bellicose rhetoric on Taiwan.

As part of a two-day visit to the Chinese capital, Rice took time to attend a Palm Sunday church service at one of the city's few states sanctioned churches. Although Rice has said the United States is not satisfied with the extent of religious freedom in communist China, she did not make that point explicit on Sunday.

China was the final stop on a weeklong tour of Asian capitals for Rice, and it was the most delicate for America's new chief diplomat. President Bush's second-term pledge to carry democratic ideals around the globe has met with suspicion in China, where government control remains a strong and constant fact of daily life.

The United States is cooperating with China on several fronts, including six-nation talks over North Korea's nuclear program. But Washington has complaints about China's record on human rights, its treatment of dissidents and the rampant piracy of movies, books and other intellectual

Washington hopes Asia visit lures North Korea back to nuclear talks

BY TERI WEAVE Stars and Stripes

SEOUL — Secretary of State Condoleczza Rice on Sunday reaffirmed the Bush administration's determination to lure North Korea back to multination negotiations about its nuclear programs, adding that the communist state could use the talks to find "the respect that they have desired and get the assistance that they need."

The softer rhetoric came as Rice made her first Asian tour as America's top diplomat. The trip, in part, is meant to revive nuclear negotiations with North Korea and ask for more direct help from China to persuade North Korea, which trades with China, to accept fuel and other economic incentives in return for dismantling its nuclear weapons program.

"I would hope that all of this taken together would suggest to North Korea that the six-party talks are the place that they can actually get the respect that they have desired and get the assistance that they need," Rice said during a 30-minute news conference at the Korean Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade.

Rice arrived Saturday evening in South Korea and went straight to an underground bunker south of Seoul meant to serve as a command headquarters for U.S. and South Korean troops if war were to break out on the peninsula.

"I wanted to come here to thank you for what you do on the front lines of freedom," she told more than 100 servicemembers, according to The New York Times. "I know you face a closein threat every day."

in threat every day."

North Korea, which announced it had nuclear weapons capabilities in early February, has said it would rather discuss its nuclear programs solely with the United States, rather than in six-party talks that add China, Japan, Russia and South Korea to the mix

On Sunday, Rice said that abandoning the six-party format is not an option. Her counterpart, Korean Foreign Minister Ban Ki-moon, echoed that.

North Korea "would like to get back to a time when this was an issue between the United States and North Korea," Rice said, saying that Russia, China, Japan and South Korea also share an acute interest in controlling nuclear programs in North Korea.

"This is an issue of the neighborhood, and what kind of Korean peninsula we're going to have," she said.

Bomb kills at least 30 at Shiite shrine in Pakistan

BY NASEER KAKAR The Associated Press

QUETTA, Pakistan - Investigators on Sunday sought clues into a bombing that tore through a gathering of thousands at a Shiite Muslim shrine in southwestern Pakistan, killing 30 people and wounding 20, officials said.

The bomb went off at 10:20 p.m. on Saturday, hitting devotees as they were taking supper at the shrine in Fatehpur village, 210 miles south of Quetta, during an annual commemoration of a revered Shiite saint

Police puzzled over the motive for the attack on the event, attended by both Shiite and Sunni Muslims, as well as minority Hindus. Officials said it could have been sectarian or the result of a personal dispute over control of the shrine

The blast left a 2-foot-deep crater and a scene of bloody carnage - and added to security woes in restive Baluchistan province, hit last week by fighting between government forces and renegade tribesmen.

There was no claim of responsibility for the attack, or immediate indication it was linked to the trib al rebellion

Provincial police chief Chaudhry Mohammed Yaqoob said investigators believed the blast was caused by a time bomb packed with about seven pounds of explosive and ruled out an initial theory it was a suicide attack. He said the bomb went off in a crowded area, and four or five bodies were burned and mutilated

DOHA, Qatar - Qatar on Sunday blamed an Egyptian for a suicide car bomb attack on a Doha theater that killed one Briton. days after an al-Qaida leader purportedly called for attacks on Western interests in the Gulf region as Iraq marks the second an-niversary of the U.S.-led invasion.

After Saturday's blast, the largely European audience reportedly streamed out of the hall in the midst of the performance, a rendition of Shakespeare's Twelfth Night."

Qatari authorities identified the charred body of a suicide bomber inside a vehicle as Omar Ahmed Abdullah Ali, an Egyptian who also owned the car used to carry out the 9:15 p.m. attack on the Doha Players Theater in the northern suburb of Farek A Briton, Jonathan Adams, was killed in the attack, according to British Foreign Office. Twelve others, including six Qa-taris, a Briton, an Eritrean and a Somali, were injured in the blast and later were released from the hospital, Qatari officials said.

The bombing occurred on the second anniversary of the U.S.-led invasion in Iraq, although it was unclear if the two events were linked. Saleh al-Aoofi, who purportedly heads al-Qaida in the Gulf region, urged militants this week to attack Westerners in Oatar and other countries.

Nobody claimed responsibility for the attack on the theater, which is popular with Westerners and close to the Doha English Speaking School.

Americans were among the large number of foreigners in the theater audience, but none were believed to have been injured. U.S. Embassy spokeswoman Patricia Kabra said.

The Interior Ministry said the explosion "was the result of a criminal operation carried out' by Ali, who detonated his car bomb from behind a brick wall close to the theater, which is located in a compound.

Senate passes bill to keep Schiavo alive

House Republicans rush back to Capitol to cast emergency vote; Bush vows to sign measure

BY JIM ABRAMS The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Senate passed a bill that could prolong Terri Schiavo's life while a federal court considers her case. and House Republicans, stymied by Democrats, scrambled to bring enough lawmakers back to the Capitol for an emergency vote early Monday.

GOP leaders planned a House vote just past midnight, hours after the Senate approved the bill by voice vote. President Bush rushed back from his Texas ranch for a chance to sign the measure.

The plan had been for the House to act first and then the Senate to pass the House version. But with Democrats forcing a delay in the House, the Senate went ahead and passed its own, identical, version by unrecorded voice vote

That means the House will be acting on the Senate-passed bill, still enabling the legislation to be hurried to Bush for signature into law.

The White House said the president would act as soon as the measure reaches him. "We ought to err on the side of life in a case like this," said White House spokes-man Scott McClellan. Asked about a bill that would cover a single person, he said. "I think most people recognize that this case involves some extraordinary circumstances?

Lawmakers who left Washington on Friday for the two-week Easter recess had to make abrupt changes in plans, backtracking for a dramatic and politically conten-

Democrats expressed sympathy for the severely brain-damaged Florida woman and for the plight of her family. But they also accused Republicans of ramming through constitutionally questionable legislation to satisfy the agenda of their conservative allies

In a special session Sunday afternoon, Democrats refused to allow the bill to be passed without a roll call vote

Under House rules, such a vote could not occur until Monday, thus the plans for a vote at 12:01 a.m. Monday at which time at least 218 of the 435-member House must appear. Also, because it was an expedited vote, the measure needed votes from two-thirds of those present for passage. The House has 232 Republicans, 202

Democrats and one independent.

The legislation would give Schiavo's parents the right to file suit in federal court over the withdrawal of food and medical treatment needed to sustain the life of their

It says the court, after determining the merits of the suit, "shall issue such declaratory and injunctive relief as may be necessary to protect the rights" of the woman. Injunctive relief in this case could mean the reinserting of feeding tubes.

"It gives Terri Schiavo another chance, Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist, R-Tenn.. said after the late-afternoon voice vote in a near-empty Senate chamber. "It guarantees a process to help Terri, but does not guarantee a particular outcome.

Frist also noted that the bill, responding to some Democratic objections, does not affect state assisted suicide laws or serve as a precedent for future legislation.

A Senate bill passed by the House is returned to the Senate enrollment clerk's office where it is printed on parchment and, when speed is important, driven immediately to the White House by Senate personnel. There, the White House clerk takes custody of the legislation and prepares it for the president to sign into law. The procedure is routine when quick action is portant, such as on overdue budget bills and can be handled in minutes as opposed

The White House made arrangements for Bush to sign the measure at any hour, although without fanfare. Rep. Chris Smith, R-N.J., said members scattered across the globe were being summoned back to Washington by aides to House Majority Whip Roy Blunt, R-Mo.

Annan to propose big changes at U.N.

NEW YORK - Secretary-General Kofi Annan on Monday will pro-pose restructuring a U.N. human rights panel, ask for a swift decision to expand the Security Council and request sweeping changes de signed to prevent new scandals, the Los Angeles Times reported.

The blueprint for reform, according to a draft copy obtained by The Times, also proposes ways to keep the U.N. the primary setting for global security decisions and the key player in international development issues The reforms depend on the endorsement of the General Assembly and the agreement of world leaders who are coming to a U.N. summit in September, the Times said in a story posted to its Web site.

Many of the ideas in the document have been floated in recent months by special panels on U.N. reform and global development that Annan commissioned. But fierce reactions from some governments led Annan to temper a pro posed definition of terrorism and stop short of requiring criteria for membership on the human rights

With the U.N. still bruised by the U.S. decision to lead an invasion of Iraq without the Security Council's blessing, Annan has searched for ways to keep the Bush administration engaged in the world body and address U.S.'s post-Sept. 11 sense of vulnerability. In an at-tempt to put the U.N. at the

3 missing after explosion at Colo. lodge

A flight crew prepares to take off from Paonia High School late Saturday in Paonia, Colo. The school served as a triage area after a fiery explosion, that may have been caused by propane, destroyed a nearby mountain lodge PAONIA, Colo. - Three youngsters were missing and 16 others were injured in a fiery explosion that destroyed a remote mountain lodge, authorities said Sunday.

The three missing, ages 3, 12, and 15, were all from the same family, Delta County Sheriff Fred McKee said.

"We are very concerned that they were last seen in the lodge." McKee said.

McKee said the explosion Saturday at the Electric Mountain Lodge may have been caused by propane, which was used for heating. Investigators planned to enter the burned-out lodge Sun-day if the wreckage had cooled sufficiently. Because the lodge in the Gunnison National Forest on the western slopes of the Rockies is isolated by heavy snow, helicopters took injured people off the mountain while ground crews used tracked vehicles to ferry emergency medical teams to the site.

Injuries ranged from burns and smoke inhalation to "serious compound fractures," according to officials

IRS agents seized the 42-room Redstone Castle in the mountains near Aspen in March 2003 while investigating an international Ponzi investment scheme.

Can money buy happiness?

MarketWatch

NEW YORK - Can money really buy happiness? The surprising answer is "ves" — but only after some work on your part. writes journalist Laura Rowley in her new book, "Money & Happiness: A Guide to Living the Good Life."

People treat money as more than a financial entity. They see it as an extension of their beliefs and personalities. For example, people who have endured hard times and poverty will scrimp and save everything, even if they are now wealthy.

For money to buy happiness, you must separate it from that emotional baggage and instead use it to achieve what you really value.

Ask vourself what money means to you. Analyze how you use it. Are your most satisfying experiences related to money, such as receiving a raise or going out on an expensive night on the town? Does your life revolve around making money, for example, putting off other things for work or taking a new job solely for the salary? Consider what beliefs about money might be holding you back. Do you believe you must be educated or well-connected to make money? Are past financial failures keeping you from trying again to succeed? Do you think wealth leads to materialism and greed? Search within these beliefs and ideas for your underlying values.

Make a plan to use money as a tool to achieve those values and happiness. Avoid using money in ways that go against those values and leave you feeling unhappy

NEWARK, N.J. — John Z. DeLorean, an innovative automaker who left a promising career in Detroit to develop the short-lived gull-winged sports cars featured as a souped-up time travel machine in the "Back to the Future" movies, has died. He was 80.

Robinson's 'Gilead' wins top book prize for fiction

BY HILLEL ITALIE The Associated Press

NEW YORK - "Gilead." Marilynne Robinson's poetic, modern-day testament of a dying Iowa preacher, won the National Book Critics Circle prize for fiction Friday night.

"I could not be more delighted," said an emotional Robinson, whose novel was her first since she debuted in 1980 with the acclaimed "Housekeeping." Robinson, a faculty member at the University of Iowa's influential Writers' Workshop, praised her school for offering "a wonderful intellectual and spiritual home.

Bob Dylan, a finalist for the biography/autobiography prize for his memoir "Chronicles, Vol. 1." did not attend and did not win.

The award instead was given to "De Kooning: An American Mas-ter," by Mark Stevens and Annalyn Swan. Music did prevail in the criticism category, with Patrick Neate winning for "Where You're At: Notes From the Frontline of a Hip-Hop Planet.'

Diarmaid MacCulloch's "The Reformation: A History" won for general nonfiction, while Adrienne Rich, winner of the National Book Award and other honors in her long career, was cited in poetry for "The School Among the Ruins."

In accepting the fiction prize, Robinson praised critics for welcoming a book that was "quiet" and "probably a little arcane." Her novel, written in concise, complex prose, is narrated by John Ames, a preacher suffering from heart disease who looks back at a world for which he feels awe, but also dismay.

The National Book Critics Cirfounded in 1974, is a not-for-profit organization of about 600 book editors and critics

Young actress gets a big boost

She raises profile in new flick 'Because of Winn-Dixie'

BY ROBERT DENERSTEIN Scripps Howard News Service

he acting bug often bites early, but in the case of Anna Sophia Robb, it must have been buzzing around her cradle. The 11-year-old developed the acting itch between ages 2 and 3.

"I saw people on TV and I loved being around people and performing," said Robb. "I loved to pretend. I think that's really what got me going

The young actress experienced a considerable boost in her profile with the release of "Because of Winn-Dixie," a Wayne Wang-directed adaptation of a much-admired Kate Di-Camillo novel about a girl and her dog. The movie debuted in the States on Feb. 18.

And come summer, Robb will receive even more attention when she's seen in Tim Bur-ton's eagerly awaited "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory," playing Violet Beauregarde to Johnny Depp's Willie Wonka in this remake.

"I read the book before I knew I was going to do the movie," said Robb of "Winn-Dixie. "It had a seriousness - if that's a word - that kids could understand. ... Little kids can start understanding what they might have to deal with in life.

The movie tells the story of Opal Buloni (Robb), a girl who moves to a small Southern town (the movie was filmed in Louisiana) with her preacher father (Jeff Daniels), Onal's alcoholic mom split years ago, leaving Opal lonely and friendless, a condition exaggerated by a move to a new town. Enter Winn-Dixie, a rambunctious Picardy shepherd. The dog befriends Opal, and life begins to turn around.

Wearing a sweater, a jean-skirt and a tan pair of Uggs for an interview that took place in the children's reading room of the main branch of the Denver Public Library, the self-possessed Robb had no trouble answering questions. Is she anything like Opal? Not really.

"My mom (an interior designer) is wonderful. My dad (an architect) talks to me a ton. I don't have a big dog. I have a little one. To land the role, Robb competed against 650 young actors who submitted audition tapes. She was called to Los Angeles, met the director and eventually traveled to Louisiana for a screen test

Before "Winn-Dixie," Robb had been in a short film and had done commercial work.

'When I had an agent in Denver, I was doing commercials and voiceovers. Just little things. Then I started my acting classes ... I had gymnastics three to six hours a week. Then I'd go swimming. I had Irish step dance. I had voice And school It was very busy As soon as I went out to L.A., it was all dropped. I quit Irish dance. I quit gymnastics.'

Robb is now schooled by her mother and by tutors on the set. She takes voice and piano lessons

"I go swimming for P.E.," she said. "I go snowboarding whenever I have a chance.

Not that she's had much time lately for sliding down hills. After "Winn-Dixie," Robb traveled to Canada to make a TV movie — "Saman-tha: An American Girl Holiday" — about a girl who learns to be a proper Victorian young lady. Next came London

"For 'Charlie,' they asked me if I could come to London for a half a year. I said, 'Sure,

I'll go,' So we packed up our stuff and left." London meant working with Depp. "At first I was a little nervous

Then you meet him. He's this totally normal guy.... Kind of quiet. A wonderful actor. It's kind of scary in the movie, watching him be Willie Wonka and then he can snap right out of it and be Johnny. Aside from having a pigeon lodge its foot in her mouth during the shooting of a pet-shop scene in "Winn-Dixie," things seem to be people and performing.

going quite well for Robb. And she hasn't 11 saw people on TV and I forgotten the little people, which in her case loved being around is literally true. We're talking about kids. "When I come home after a film, they (friends) think it's cool I miss them and they miss me. It's good to see them every now and again

As mature as Robb can sound, there are limits to what she's allowed to do. Take movies, for example,

"When I heard that Wayne Wang was the director (of 'Winn-Dixie'), my dad said, 'Oh, we'll watch all his films.' We looked him up on IMDB (Internet Movie Data Base). The movies were rated PG-13 and R. I was 9 at the time. I think in a couple of more years I'll be able to watch them

Her own movie tastes seem well-defined. "I like anything, really, as long as it's not cheesy and always happy. I like more dark stories. I like stuff that has a happy ending, but isn't sugary sweet. I love the Harry Potter movies and the books. I love the 'Lord of the Rings' stories and 'The Incredibles.'

said Jean, kneeling in front of Hill. "Do you all understand what's happening on this stage? I'm too emotional right now

Remember 'muzzle awareness'

What ever happened to "muzzle awareness," the mantra chanted by my drill ser-geants, and repeated in mobilization training prior to my Iraq deployment?

I hear it even now, in Iraq, where I see it completely disregarded a hundred times a day. The main culprits — 9 mms. Those carrying 9 mms seem to prefer to purchase their own over-the-shoulder holsters, as opposed to the issued belt or leg

The problem arises when we are forced to look straight down the harrel while walk. ing behind someone who is wearing a holster that points the weapon to the rear instead of down. Maybe these holsters are more comfortable. Maybe people think the 9 mm is less dangerous than an M16 be cause it is so much smaller. But the fact is, a negligent discharge from any weapon can be deadly.

It's time everyone realizes that this lack of attention to detail can cost us lives unnecessarily.

Be proud of support jobs

In response to "Let women train for infantry" (letter, March 17): Why, in this day and age has there become such a need for this equality?

In all the other major conflicts this coun try has endured, at no time was a need mentioned for females to pick up their arms and fight battles alongside males. It was deemed OK for males to do the killing and for the males, and males alone, to do the dying. Understood that females play a much larger role in wartime than in the past but, if memory serves, females did not rise up in anger when no one asked if they wanted to fight, even during the Persian Gulf War. It seems as if every female soldier who has been on something as simple as a convoy down a main support route feels she is doing the same job as the infantry, and should be recognized as such.

They are not infantry, nor does their mission entitle them to call themselves infan-

We applaud those females who have engaged the enemy and fought with vigor and valor, but that is not an everyday occurrence with their job. They should leave the killing to the killers; be proud of the support they give. It is hard for many to see how females as a whole would be willing, or able, to continuously have that "killer instinct" required to be an infantry sol-not think she has the ability to see into my mind or heart, because that is what a person would have to do to see my God-given heauty

And as far as looking worse than other branches, I would hope that means I look like I work harder because I am sure I do sometimes. Perception is reality. That is an unofficial Army motto. So, when I look around and see a female who took the time to put on earrings with her DCUs, it is my perception that the female does not think that at any time, what has been a routine deployment could turn into a dangerous situation or, God forbid, deadly. So, forgive me, Army, if I am not doing more than making sure I am clean and well-groomed, but keeping myself combat-ready instead of "parade pretty takes precedence.

It's all about recognition

Whatever happened to selfless service? I have been an infantryman for 23 years and am disgusted with all this talk of Combat Infantryman and Close Combat badges. Part of what noncombat arms people don't seem to understand is that those of us who elected to be in combat arms did so to belong to something special, not to get ribbons and badges. Our reward, we've always known, comes from our neers.

Today the Army of One really is about individual recognition; they've said it themselves. I want my recognition.

Jump boots, berets, Airborne tabs. cords and wings - all these things are given to those who never wanted to earn them. But the Army of One has decided to issue badg-es, berets, tabs and ribbons in the hope it generates pride. Not likely.

This is not the first time cooks, clerks and drivers have fought and served with the infantry. It's just the first time so many individuals have wanted recognition.

Don't give them a badge

I am an infantryman currently serving my second tour in Iraq with the 3rd Infantry Division. Reading Stars and Stripes daily has me upset because of the tremendous response to the Close Combat Badge. I understand that those soldiers not in the 11 (infantry) series who come under fire should be given credit for what they have done. But they should not be given a badge of their own Sure, they took fire; sure, they lost soldiers; and sure, they might have done something that closely resembles infantry work. They didn't intentionally go looking for people to attack; they went out to do

During the war, I went out looking for the enemy. That is why I joined the infantry, to be the man on the front line, to be the one getting shot at so other people don't have to. I chose it; so yes, I deserve my Combat Infantryman Badge.

Most of the soldiers who went into other military occupational specialties did that so they wouldn't get shot at. Yet, when they do, they feel they are entitled to something that I and my fellow infantrymen hold so dear to us. Why is that? The bottom line is simple. If you want a hadge for combat, join the infantry

AFN needs diverse opinions

Rush Limbaugh is not of interest to all. Equal time needs to go to more moderate interests, and, failing that, to progressive ones

I hereby launch a campaign to hear Air America once, at prime time, for every time Rush is on the air. Please let your local American Forces Network radio station know that you need to hear more than a paid announcement from the party line. Any other point of view is absolutely nec-

OPINION

Spoon-fed 'news' is a source of discontent

osta Times (Walnut Creek, Calif.)

ublic relations morphs into propa ganda disguised as news. The pub lic becomes the unwitting victim both intellectually and finanas the government seeks to deceive, and the media, particularly broad-cast, are helping them do it.

That's the nub of what's going on when the federal government produces and distrib "prepackaged reports" that look like the local evening news. Call it Poliwood

This abomination apparently began in the Clinton administration

The Bush administration has doubled its budget and seems to have refined it to an art form.

The biggest problem here is that the audience is unaware that it is watching something produced by the government. It is watching something meant, not to inform, but to spread certain ideas and instill certain beliefs. The audience, likewise, is unaware that this sham is being paid for with its tax dollars

These video news releases, as they are known, may look the part, but they have nothing to do with journalism.

Yet they are being spoon-fed to the public through alleged journalists. In an effort to save money and time, dispensers of news are taking these government-delivered pieces and passing them off as their

They delete information that would inform viewers what government agency has produced and presented this pointed data and purposely leave it to appear as if it were their own. This deceit is shameless. Of course the material is flattering to the administration; the administration's people are producing it. It's not news; it's public relations

The apparent hope of its producers is that it will leave a positive impression, one that is probably inaccurate and undeserved.

Despite being told by the General Accountability Office, the impartial investigative arm of Congress, that these fake news reports are unacceptable when viewers are not clear on the source of the material, multiple departments have told their people to ignore the GAO's advice to desist.

That means it's up to the media to label them clearly or, better yet, to actually stop using them and do their jobs. They must without shortcuts, present a fair picture of what they are calling news

Credibility and veracity still mean some thing to some of us, but nonchalance and bottom lines have made too many people far too willing to squander that.

It's time the media take responsibility for their part in this debacle. We must change our lazy methods and return to the old-school days of acquiring our own information, cultivating our own sources and relying on our own work to put together and convey the news.

We are, however, in a different age. So it also means that individual viewers must be aware and on guard as well. Sadly, they must be suspicious. The "news" has to be examined for balance and fairness and it should be monitored for presentations of government propaganda.

5 cents per gallon would reciprocate GIs' sacrifice

BY KEVIN C. VOTTA

hether we like to admit it or not, we are a nation at war and, as President Bush has pointed out, "War has no certainty, except the certainty of sacrifice.

While almost all Americans would love to make some type of sacrifice for their country, the only groups that have been asked to make any sacrifice are the members of our military and their fami-lies. Americans are deeply concerned over the financial and emotional hardships the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan have put (and will continue to put) on the members of our armed services and their families Even those who oppose war in general would like to help ease the hardships our servicemembers and their families are facing. Thankfully, lessons of past wars have allowed Americans to understand that, while you may not support the war, you should always support the warrior.

Unlike in past wars, very little sacrifice has been asked of the average American Surely our soldiers are truly grateful for letand small contributions, but more needs to be done on a larger scale, especial ly to help those with families in the States.

In looking at numerous ways to help our soldiers, one solution continuously re ceived support of nearly 90 percent of Americans. That solution was a temporary 5-cent-per-gallon gas tax that would raise nearly $7 billion per year to be used exclusively to provide tax-free payments to our soldiers and their families and to the families that have lost loved ones fighting in Iraq and Afghanistan. This would provide a tax-free payment of $500,000 to all families that lost a family member and it would provide a yearly tax-free payment in the area of $20,000 to all members of our military serving in Iraq and Afghanistan.
When our last soldier comes home [from these conflicts], we can repeal the tax. Why a gas tax? The reasons are numer-

First, our soldiers and their families are in need of financial help. Many are reservists and National Guardsmen who have lost a substantial part of their income but still have the same bills. Those who are small-business owners are losing their businesses. The long months of separation are hard enough on a marriage, but the financial difficulties often lead to divorce. A small yearly payment of a few thousand dollars would beln

Second, the family members of our soldiers who are lost in battle currently receive a little more than $12,000 in "death benefits" from the government. While there are currently efforts in Washington to move that to $100,000, that is still too low. It needs to be raised to $500,000. How can we provide millions for each family that lost a loved one in the Sept. 11, 2001, tragedy but only $12,000 or perhaps $100,000 to our soldiers' families? There are currently about 1,000 children who have lost a mother or father fighting for our country [in Iraq and Afghanistan] and $12,000 is barely enough to pay for the

on their table for a year.

■ Third, 90 percent of Americans want to pay this tax. Americans want to feel like they are making a sacrifice for our soldiers. This tax would cost the average American in the area of 50 cents per week.

Fourth, it helps with soldiers' morale and military recruiting. While soldiers know Americans support them, this would be an excellent way to prove it. It would also let possible recruits know they will not have to worry about any financial difficulties should they be sent overseas to fight for their country. ■ Fifth, it raises $7 billion for a Depart ment of Defense that is facing tough bud-get issues and base closings. Either way, officials need to come up with the money for the likely increase in death benefits pro posed in Congress. This would allow them to free up that money for other needs.

Sixth, it makes us aware that we are a country dependent on oil. While some have proposed a 50-cents- or $1-per-gallon gas tax, [my organization, Fight for Our Troops and Veterans] believes this would hurt our economy. Most experts believe gas would have to reach $3.50 a gallon or $100 per fill-up before buying habits changed. A 5-cents-per-gallon tax might not change buying habits, but it will make drivers aware when they fill up that maybe they should start driving less or drive a little slower in order to offset the small sacrifice a 5-cents-per-gallon tax would bring.

Seventh, with slight pressure (or, as President Bush likes to say, "jawboning") on the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to dump additional crude on our market, the 5-cents-per-gallon tax would easily be offset. The likelihood is that OPEC would agree to this, considering its members have been the beneficiaries of past actions performed by our troops.

■ We feel they would do whatever possible to make sure our troops and their families are taken care of.

Finally, it is just the right thing to do.

This month we celebrated the 140th anniversary of arguably our country's greatest speech, Abraham Lincoln's second inaugural. In his speech, the man who brought freedom to all Americans asked us to "care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow, and his orphan." This temporary tax would allow us to honor his request.

Kevin C. Votta is executive director of the Tampa, Fla.-based Fight for Our Troops and Veterans, a recently formed nonprofit organization dedicated to helping U.S. servicemembers and veterans.

Tuna protection plan

HUNOLULU — The council responsible for managing the fisheries of the western Pacific Ocean has come up with an initial plan to help prevent overfishing of bigeye tuna, a favorite of Japan's sashimi market.

Only about 5 percent of the bigeye tuna harvested from the Pacific is caught in the U.S. Exclusive Economic Zone — the waters between three and 200 miles off the coasts of Hawaii, American Samoa and the Northern Mariana Islands.

In December, the National Marine Fisheries notified the Western Pacific Regional Fishery Management Council that bigeye tuna is being overfished and ordered the council to come up with a plan by June 14, when the council will next meet to address overfishing.

Although the council's initial plans are enforceable only within the U.S. waters, the council included recommendations for foreign vessels as well.

Tribe short of water

SD SIOUX FALLS — Some 14,000 residents of the Cheyenne River Indian Reservation could run out of water by August because of a drought along the Missouri River basin, officials said

The tribe's list of potential problems stretches from health concerns to firefighting. The reservation's schools and its only hospital and clinic would have to close. "It will be more than just running out of water for a couple of days. There will be 14,000 people that have no water whatsoever," said Wayne Ducheneaux, a tribal official and member of a task force working to come up with a water plan.

Poverty on the reservation is complicating the matter, said Rebecca Kidder, a lawyer for the tribe.

Oceans get loud

MA BOSTON — The ocean was flat and the winter darkness over Cape Cod Bay was unbroken by ship lights. But below the bay's surface, Christopher Clark found things weren't as serene as they seemed.

The bay is saturated with sound.

"It's just a great, big amphitheater," said Clark, a Cornell bioacoustics scientist who monitored the bay with underwater listening devices.

AMERICAN ROUNDUP

The sound carrying through the bay that evening was part of an ever louder manmade din that's filling the world's oceans, and some say harming marine life.

High-profile whale beachings have been linked to sonar blasts and sparked fierce public debate over the military's use of sound in national defense. But a broader concern for scientists is rising levels of ocean background noise, much of it generated by commercial shipping, and whether it interferes with the way the entire sea has operated for cons.

Hearing is the primary sense for marine life, which uses sound for navigation and communication.

Plozizka said she knew after becoming a dialysis nurse five years ago that she would probably donate a kidney to a patient one day. Her only requirement was that the recipient had to commit to a lifetime regimen of anti-rejection medicine.

She believed Cline would be diligent because he desperately wanted to live for his 5-year-old grandson. Hunter.

"I wanted to see if I could get him to the goal of being there for Hunter, his wife, and his daughter," she said.

Diving pig dies

AUSTIN — An electrical problem may be to blame for the death of a stunt-diving pig at the Star of Texas Fair and Rodeo.

The animal known as "Big Red" died after diving off a platform into a heated pool as part of Randall's High Diving Pig Show.

The pigs have performed the stunts many times, but owner Virgil Randall said he has had trouble with the pool's electricity recently. Rodeo officials were investigating the death.

Deer harvest declines

PA HARRISBURG — Hunters killed more than 409,000 deer during the 2004-05 deer season, a 12 percent drop from the previous season, the state Game Commission said.

The estimate released is the sixth highest since 1986, when the agency began compiling deer-harvest statistics.

"What these harvest figures reinforce is what we've been hearing from many hunters — they didn't see or harvest as many deer this past hunting season in some areas," said Calvin W. DuBrock, the commission's wildlife management bureau director.

The commission will use the estimates when it meets on April 25 and 26 to give final approval to schedules and bag limits for the 2005-06 hunting season.

Teen alcohol loophole

VA RICHMOND — A bill written to put liquor off-limits to youthful drinkers at private parties could permit boozy prom parties or frat bashes right out of "Animal House," groups opposed to teen drinking contend.

Even the bill's sponsor, Del. Rob Bell, wants the governor to amend a sentence in his legislation to fix the problem, and the Washington-based Beer Institute supports the request.

"The amendment by the governor would be a good idea because it would make sure the courts know you can't serve liquor to kids unless their parents are there," said Bell, R-Albemarle. "But if you put a keg in your back yard and everyone comes over for it, that's the sort of thing we're trying to stop," he said. The law now allows people who hold parties in their own homes to serve alcohol to anyone regardless of age.

Dead jumbo squid are again washing up along Orange County's coastline, baffling scientists who are trying to find out why.

The Ocean Institute in Dana Point has conducted some of the research, shipping specimens to the Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History and Stanford University for further study

Scientists at the institute dissected a 5-foot-long, 15-pound female Humboldt squid that was filled with parasites and sand. More than a 100 squid have been spotted between Dana Point and San Clemente Still, there are no answers.

Scientists believe the squid are swimming north from Mexico to follow food sources, forcing them to come closer to the surface and shore. Squid normally live and hunt 3,000 feet below the water's surface

Cow pie wildfire probe

LONGMONT — Authorities are investigating whether Forest Service workers can be charged with arson for a 900-acre wildfire that was ignited after gusty winds carried flaming cow dung outside a controlled burn site.

Weld County District Attorney Ken Buck said he received several complaints from farmers and ranchers in the Pawnee National Grassland area, where the Forest Service was conducting a controlled burn of prairie weeds March 11.

Callers complained the fire shouldn't have been set because of high winds and that the fire endangered farm property

No marriage for cousins

PA HOLLIDAYSBURG — A county judge refused to make an exception for two first cousins who want to marry, even though the couple assured the judge they don't want to have children

Blair County Judge Jolene Kopriva denied the marriage license application for first cousins Eleanor Amrhein, 46, and Donald W. Andrews Sr., 39, of Logan Township.

The couple say they have been together for several years, but Kopriva said state law bars first cousins from marrying because of an increased likelihood their children will have birth defects.

Kopriva told the couple her ruling would not prevent them from being married in another state that permits it.

About half of the states allow first cousins to marry, according to www.stateline.org, a Web site on state laws

Wholesome cheerleading

AUSTIN — The Friday night lights in Texas could soon be without bumpin' and grindin' cheerleaders

Legislation filed by state Rep. Al Edwards of Houston would put an end to "sexually suggestive" performances at high school athletic events and other extracurricular competitions you know, the way they're shaking their behinds and going on, break ing it down," said Edwards, a 26-year veteran of the Texas House.

Under Edwards' bill if a school district knowingly permits such a performance, state funds would be reduced in an amount to be determined by the education commissioner.

Edwards said he filed the bill after seeing several instances of such ribald performances in his district.

Sex abuse alleged

NY A man who was charged with raping and sodomizing seven children in Queens has confessed to assaulting more children. authorities said.

He allegedly raped, sodomized and otherwise sexually abused the children in his home and in his van

Authorities are investigating whether he assaulted any of the three children he has with his wife. with whom he lives in West Hempstead in Long Island

School drug testing

HONOLULU — Mid-Pacific Institute will become the first school in Hawaii to begin testing students for drug use when a voluntary, confidential program begins next fall at the private school in Manoa

The administration mailed letters announcing the program to naments and posted information on the school's Web site. About 1,170 students in grades six through 12 would be eligible for testing.

A student and his or her parents must agree the student should be subjected to the random tests, said high school principal Richard Schaffer.

The program is intended to "gently force a discussion between par-ents and students," said school president Joe Rice. Parents, not the school, will be informed of results of the urine tests, he said.

IN CROTHERSVILLE — A school playground with equipment resembling a small castle and treehouse will serve as a memorial for a 10-year-old girl who was abducted and drowned after happening upon people making methamphetamine.

The plans for the new playground were announced Crothersville Community School after designers spent the day talking with students about their ideas for the memor "Katie" Collman. memorial for Katlyn

The fifth-grader was abducted Jan. 25 while returning home in the town about 40 miles north of Louisville, Ky., after running an errand. Her body was found five days later, in a creek north of Seymour

J Horoscope

Love planet Venus dances into Aries with a fanciful "Ta DA!" Some of you get the feeling you have arrived for the first time at love's gate and it opens Holiday Mathis wide. All the ways you've loved before now seem like puppy stuff. Try not to make rash promises. This too shall pass! Tonight, the moon enters Virgo, bringing our feet slightly closer to the Earth.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (March 22). Your boundless enthusiasm is so attractive this year that you'll attract many admirers. Next month shows you taking the steps necessary to make more money - better education is definitely part of the equation. Singles: The more you expand your mind, the better your love life becomes. Virgo and Libra are especially amorous partners.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You're attracted to danger. Some one you like, though very gorgeous, is nonetheless messed up in the head. As the 1980s Poison song goes, "Every rose has its thorn. Decide up front what you can deal with these days.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You know what it feels like to be close to someone in proximity and be miles apart on the inside. Instead of living with uncomfortable feelings. now is the time to bring them into the open. You're well received.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You're the one who brings culture to the ignorant, good manners to the barbarians and taste to the vahoos Accent your role, and take it serious lv. Also take it humorously, fancifully and exuberantly

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Why should one person suffer poverty while the world caters to another person's every whim? The injustice of the world strikes a chord deep in your soul, and you are moved to action

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). There's heroism in your actions. You're in a position to protect those you love -and those you hardly know, too from some plundering person who is used to taking things by force.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22).

You're offered the cream of the crop and should not feel one ounce of guilt about this. Take it! It's not every day you can eat your dessert first. Perhaps you can even forgo the vegetables altogether.

LIBRA (Sept.

23-Oct. 23). You're so used to putting others first, at no small cost to vourself, that you could now find out you've been storing up resentful feelings. You matter. Stand up, and be SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). There are some things about your quirky personality that are difficult to explain. Perhaps a loved one will never understand your emotional attachment to a certain object, but ask for respect and tolerance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Getting just the right mix of people together makes the difference between successful endeavor and a waste of time. Beware of a hyper-sensitive person who could change the dynamic of the whole group.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.

19). Open to a little excitement? That's why you'll be sent off on some misadventure while others diligently slog away at the same old, same old. For all your trouble, you'll have the best dinner-table story.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Get rid of that habit you have that serves no purpose except to kill time. You've outgrown it. As far as friends who can make you feel terrific about yourself, a Capricorn or Aries is just what the doctor ordered.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20).

Events this afternoon are almost burlesque in tone. Something silly may be treated with the utmost seriousness, or something serious is mocked with ridiculous levity. Either way, it's lively entertainment.

'Harmless' talk not so harmless

Dear Abby: In response to "Conversationally Speaking," a reader who complained about being eavesdropped upon in restaurants, you suggested that the couple engage in some "wild dialogue" for entertainment nurposes, such as "how to spend their drug Dear Abby money" or which girl vou planned to send on the next "call." As a police officer who has had to waste significant time and resources following up on such reports of "suspicious behavior," I'm surprised you would encourage such an irresponsible action. Our nation's homeland security is of paramount importance these days, and our governing leaders have requested help from the public in "remaining vigilant" and reporting suspicious behavior to the proper authorities. Fifty lashes with a wet noodle to you for failing to consider the consequences of your ill-advised recommendation. What were you thinking?

- Dan Hoffman, Deputy Chief, Fairbanks (Alaska) Police Dept. Dear Deputy Chief Hoffman: I was thinking about having some fun, not about homeland security In the light of the soher times we live in. however, I probably should have played it straighter. On a lighter note, quite a few readers wrote to describe how they have handled the situation. Read on for a couple samples:

Dear Abby: I had the same experience. Since everyone at my table was in the medical field, I began describing an extremely grisly autopsy I had been involved in. Within five minutes, the couple at the nearby table had paid their bill and left their food. While they listening, they certainly got their "dose" of reality.

- Stephen in the Woodlands, Texas

Dear Stephen: Your eavesdroppers must not have been fans of the currently popular TV crime series and their spin-offs.

Dear Abby: My husband and I have a suggestion. Talk about "Aunt Tilly's" recent operation with details so graphic that only the strongest stomach could hold its contents. Or, perhaps, mention "Cousin Mandy's" little boy throwing up on the wedding cake at someone's reception.

- Margaret in Swoope, VA. Dear Margaret: That could, indeed, work.

Letters for this column — with your name and phone number — should be addressed to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles CA 90069, Readers can write by on the Internet at http://www.uexpress.com/dearabby Universal Press Syndicate

Prostitute visits devastate wife

Dear Annie: This letter is for the men in your reading audience. I have been married to "Buddy" for over 20 years. I thought we had a satisfying, wonderful sex life, but Buddy recently told me about several encounters he's had with prostitutes.

I am devastated, sad, angry, hurt - you name it. He has tremendous remorse, regret and guilt We are contemplating staying together and working through all of the layers of pain that such betraval causes. I don't know if I can do it, but I want to try.

I am so hurt and so afraid that those sexual experiences have diminished what we had. I'm fearful Buddy will remember the "talents" of these women, not to mention their youth and bodies, and compare me unfavorably. I'm attractive and thought I was plenty adventuresome, willing and provocative in bed. I was sure that I satisfied him. He certainly satisfied me.

Buddy has had zillions of disap

- Needing to Know Dear Needing: Have you asked Buddy these questions? Although some men may choose prostitutes because they are unhappy at home, we suspect that is not the case here. First, you are doing yourself a disservice. Prostitutes are not necessarily young or attractive. They are simply willing and non-judgmental. Does Buddy have a fetish or sexual proclivity that he doesn't want you to know about? We are glad you are getting counseling, and we hope you have been checked for sexually transmitted diseases. If we receive any responses to your questions, we will let you know

Dear Annie: I like fast food. However, there is one facet that I have never seen addressed: the se of sesame seeds on the buns of fast-food sandwiches Evidently, some purveyors of such food have never felt the agony of having one of these seeds caught beneath dentures. I'd bet thes seeds compensate for the lack of ability in making buns — they cover a lot of mistakes - A Whopper of a McOuch in a Box

Dear Whopper: Most fast-food places are trying to please their customers by offering a wider variety of menu items. We spoke to Joe Gerbino at Burger King and Antonio Hernandez at Mc-Donald's. Both said their companies try hard to accommodate their customers. They suggested explaining to the server that you cannot eat sesame seeds and asking for another type of bun. ## LeBron becomes youngest to score 50, but Cavs lose

The Associated Press

TORONTO - LeBron James never played better. It still wasn't enough.

James became the youngest player to score 50 points in an NBA game, but his fran-chise-record 56 weren't enough to prevent the Toronto Raptors from beating the Cleveland Cavaliers 105-98 on Sunday.

"I probably played the best game of my life but it means nothing when it comes with a loss," James said.

He easily surpassed his previous career best of 43 points, set Nov. 24 against Detroit. However, he committed a key turnover with 16 seconds left and missed two three-noint attemnts in the final

James finished 18-for-36 from the field and 14-for-15 from the line. He also had six threes. 10 rebounds and five assists. But Toronto's bench did in the Cavaliers, outscoring Cleveland's reserves 34 - 1

"I don't care about individual stats, especially when you lose. I was disappointed to have as good a game as I had and still come out with a loss " James said

At 20 years, 80 days old, James eclipsed Rick Barry as the youngest player to score 50 points Barry was 21 years, 261 days old when he scored 57 for San Francisco against the New York Knicks, according to the Elias Sports Bureau

"It's a good achievement, but I'd rather set it with a win," James said.

James' point total also bested the previous Cavaliers mark of 50 set by Walt Wesley against Cincinnati on Feb. 19, 1971.

"He's going to set a lot more records, you know, if he develops," Cleveland coach Paul Silas said. "He was just on fire tonight. He was just amazing and it was

Schilling: Canseco's career 'a sham'

BY HOWARD ULMAN The Associated Press

FORT MYERS, Fla. - Curt Schilling believes that Jose Canseco told the truth in parts of his book and said Saturday that the slugger's career was "sham" because he used steroids.

The Boston Red Sox pitcher spoke publicly for the first time since testifying Thursday during a congressional hearing on steroids and baseball.

Canseco's lawyer, Robert Saunooke, responded by noting that steroids were not hanned by base. ball when Canseco used them.

Saunooke also questioned the credibility of Schilling, who backtracked during the hearing from his earlier claims of rampant steroid use in baseball.

"Curt's inconsistencies indicate that he has no clue but supports baseball so he can keep his high-paying job," Saunooke said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press.

In his book, "Juiced," published last month, Canseco named several players, including himself and Mark McGwire, who he said had used steroids

At the hearing, Schilling sharply criticized Canseco "What you saw Thursday, un-fortunately, was the result of someone who didn't think a lot in a lot of different instances before he ruined some people's lives.

"That's not to say that he lied. I don't believe his book is all lies. "I believe that there's some

MLB, players agree on suspension as punishment for using steroids

NEW YORK — Baseball players and owners agreed Sunday to drop the possibility of fines for steroid use, leaving suspensions as the only discipline, according to management's top labor lawyer.

Congressmen repeatedly criticized baseball for the fine possibility during Thursday's hearing before the House Government Reform Committee. Management officials told the committee they were willing to eliminate the fine provision, held over from baseball's first drug-testing agreement in 2002.

"We do have an agreement with (union head Donald Fehr) that the language after the disjunctive in the various disciplinary levels is going to be eliminat-ed." Rob Manfred, baseball's executive vice president for labor relations, said Sunday. "It will be just the straight suspension, which everybody knew was going to happen anyway. To the degree there was any doubt, I think this change should put to rest any concerns in that regard."

Fehr told the committee he would have to consult with players, who have not vet approved the deal

"The agreement still has to be ratified, but the negotiators have agreed to modify that language, said Michael Weiner, the union's general counsel.

Commissioner Bud Selig repeatedly said during the hearing that his intent was to suspend players for all positive tests.

Baseball's new agreement had called for a 10-day suspension or up to $10,000 fine for a first positive test. A second positive was to result in a 30-day suspension or up to $25,000 fine, a third in a 60-day suspension or up to $50,000 fine and a fourth in a one-year suspension or up to $100,000 fine.

After that, discipline is determined by the commissioner

"It just seems to me they can't be trusted." the Arizona Republican told ABC's "This Week" on Sunday. "It seems to me that we ought to seriously consider ... a law that says all professional sports have a minimum level of performance-enhancing drug test-

House Government Reform Committee chairman Tom Davis said on CBS' "Face the Nation" that he agreed with McCain's suggestion that the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency could be called in to gov ern baseball's testing. The agency oversees drug testing and disci pline for U.S. Olympic athletes.

"They've got this season. We'll see how they respond when they find someone testing positive, the Virginia Republican said.

Mets acquire pitcher Ishii from Dodgers for C Phillips

VERO BEACH, Fla. - The New York Mets plugged a hole in their starting rotation Sunday, acquiring left-hander Kazuhisa Ishii from the Los Angeles Dodgers for catcher Jason Phillins

the void created when they lost Steve Trachsel to a back injury this spring Trachsel who made 33 starts for New York last season, had surgery Saturday to repair a herniated disc and will miss 3-6 months.

Ishii will step into the No. 5 spot in the rotation behind Pedro Martinez, Tom Glavine, Kris Benson and Victor Zambrano.
Ishii went 13-8 with a 4.71 ERA in 31 starts last season for Los Angeles. Often erratic, he walked 98 batters in 172 innings. He is 36-25 with a 4.30 ERA in three seasons with the Dodgers since coming over from Japan.

A backup to Mike Piazza with the Mets, Phillips could become the Dodgers' starting catcher. Los Angeles has been looking for an answer behind the plate because neither incumbent David Ross nor newcomer Paul Bako are known for providing much of-

He can thank Tiger Woods and Ernie Els for that.

Woods, who took back the No. 1 snot two weeks ago by winning at Doral, hit a tee shot out-of-bounds late Saturday to fall from contention and failed to make up much ground Sunday morning. He made only one birdie to shoot 74, his first round over par on the PGA Tour this year. He was at 1-under 215, nine shots behind.

Els did his damage in the second round Saturday morning when he shot 77. He recovered with a 69 in the third round, but was still 11 shots out of the lead

Alonso gives Renault second F1 win of season

SEPANG, Malaysia - Fernando Alonso won the Malaysian Grand Prix on Sunday to give Renault victories in the first two races of the Formula One season. Jarno Trulli was the runner-un for Toyota's first ton-three finish Alonso's teammate. Giancarlo Fisichella, crashed, taking Williams' Mark Webber with him, and seven-time F1 champion Michael Schumacher earned his first points of 2005 with a seventh-place finish for Ferrari.

Alonso, third in the season-opening Australian Grand Prix behind Fisichella and Ferrari's Rubens Barrichello two weeks ago, dominated from the pole position for his second GP

He covered 56 laps of the 3.445-mile Sepang circuit in 1 hour, 31 minutes, 33.736 seconds 24.3 seconds ahead of Trulli and 32.1 ahead of Williams' Nick Heidfeld, who moved up from 10th place on the starting grid.

The 23-year-old Spaniard became the youngest F1 winner when he clinched his first title at Hungary last year. This time, he bounded to the top of the podium and pumped his arms three times

"It's the second race for the engine and the car, so the team showed again that we're the team to beat," he said.

Edwards completes weekend sweep with Nextel Cup victory

HAMPTON, Ga. - A NASCAR star is born. Carl Edwards pulled off a daring move on Jimmie Johnson coming off the final turn and won his first Nextel Cup race at Atlanta heating Motor Speedway, Johnson by about a half-car length Sunday. Johnson, trying to win for the second week in a row, grabbed the lead from Edwards with 25 lans to go and appeared to be strong enough to take it all the way to the finish of the Golden Corral 500 But, on the final lap, Edwards got a great run coming out of Turn 2 and pulled up on Johnson's back bumper. Johnson went high coming through Turns 3 and 4, trying to block his challenger, but Edwards went even

The 25-year-old driver hardly resembled someone in his first full year on the circuit, hugging the wall and actually tapping Johnson's car as they roared through the trioval

Johnson's car bobbled slightly just a few feet from the finish and Edwards slipped by on the outside to win by a minuscule 0.028 seconds.

When it was over, Edwards pulled to a stop in front of the main grandstand, climbed out of his Roush Racing Ford and pulled off a move that's sure to become a standard on the Cun circuit — a backflip onto the asphalt.

"Let me tell you, Jimmie Johnson is an amazing competi-tor," Edwards said. "That's the hardest I've ever driven in my life. I'm pretty proud of that."

Edwards completed a weekend sweep in Atlanta. On Saturday, he held off Johnson and Tony Stewart to win the Busch race - his first victory in that series as well. Edwards, who moved from Greg Riffle held on for third followed by Mark Martin and Kasey Kahne.

Johnson led a race-high 156 laps, followed by Biffle with 151. Edwards led only nine laps, but he was near the front all day. "I was pretty confident I could beat (Johnson), but I couldn't beat Carl," Biffle said. "I didn't plan on him being there."

Johnson shook off the embarrassment of being docked 25 points and losing his series lead because his Chevrolet failed inspection after winning last week's race at Las Veg

"We were thinking about Victory Lane and being able to smile over our critics and everyone who thought we were doing some thing goofy last weekend," Johnson said. "We're going to prove what this team is capable of and change the impression some neonle may have of the team.

Johnson's team wasn't the only one to face NASCAR's wrath after Las Vegas. Three crew chiefs were suspended for rules violations -- though two of them were in Atlanta pending appeals

WYOMING, Mich. Johnson made bowling history Sunday afternoon, but still was disappointed. Johnson, 30, of Cheektowaga

N.Y., became the first woman to advance to the championship match of a Professional Bowlers Association tour event, but she lost by 27 pins to Tommy Jones of Mauldin, S.C., in the final of the PBA Banquet Open at Spectrum

Johnson spent eight seasons on the Professional Women's Rowling Association tour, winning 11 events including the 1996 U.S. Open as a rookie and earning more than $500,000. She made bowling history Thursday when she became the first woman to advance to the round of 32 in a PRA Tour event.

Johnson, who collected $20,000 for her runner-up finish, earned the final tournament berth Wednesday in the PBA Tour Qualifving mund then finished 11th overall Thursday in the Exempt Qualifying round and advanced to the field of 32.

Johnson qualified once previously this season, at the PBA Uniroval Tire Classic in Wickliffe, Ohio, in November, but did not advance past the round of 64. Until Johnson beat Barnes on Friday afternoon, no woman had ever won a match in a PBA Tour

Morales wins bloody brawl

BY TIM DAHLBERG

The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Manny Pacquiao fought desperately as blood flowed from a bad cut over his right eye. Against another fighter it may have been enough, but Erik Morales was not just another fighter.

Morales, fighting with the cool precision of a champion who has been there many times before, got the better of Pacquiao with jabs and big right hands Saturday night to win a close but unanimous decision in their 130-pound showdown.

No title was at stake, but there was plenty of national pride.

Pacquiao is a national hero in the Philippines, Morales is revered in Mexico, and between the two they drew a sellout crowd of 14,623 to the MGM Grand hotel to see them brawl.

They didn't disappoint, going after each other from the opening bell in a fight that grew in intensity after Pacquiao was cut in the fifth round when hit with a right hand and the two clashed heads.

Though blood flowed in his eye, Pacquiao fought gallantly and the fighters went toe to toe in a frenetic 12th round that had the crowd standing and cheering.

All three judges had Morales the winner, but not by much. He won 115-113 on the ringside scorecards, while The Associated Press had Morales ahead 116-112.

"He was a tough guy. I hit him with everything," Morales said. "I knew the guy was quick. I knew boxing would be the key because he was so fast."

It was the first fight at 130 pounds for Pacquiao, and Morales appeared to be the bigger fighter and the bigger puncher.

Pacquiao fought inside with flurries, but it was the right hand of Morales (48-2) that was the big punch in the fight.

Still, Pacquiao landed effectively with both hands and kept punching and coming forward and in the 12th round seemed to be landing the bigger punches. "It was a close fight with a lot of

"It was a close fight with a lot of close rounds," Pacquiao's trainer,

Freddie Roach, said. "Morales landed the bigger punches but Manny landed more combinations."

Pacquiao blamed the loss on having to wear different type of gloves than he usually uses. He wore them because his promoter, Murad Muhammad, signed a deal for his fighter to wear them.

Neither fighter went down, but it wasn't for lack of effort. They brawled at a relentless pace that brought back memories of Morales' three fights with Marco Antonio Barrera.

"I tried my best," Pacquiao

Pacquiao (39-3-2) came into the ring with the weight of his country on his slight shoulders. Some 30 million people in the Philippines were expected to watch the fight on live television.

In abother fight on the card, Martin Castillo of Mexico retained his WBA 115-pound title with a unanimous decision over Eric Morel (35-2) of Puetro Rico. Castillo (28-1) led 119-109 on all three scorecards in his second title defense.

Erik Morales of Mexico, right, rocks Manny Pacquiao of the Philippines with a right hand in their super featherweight bout on Saturday night.

Consolidator's San Felipe romp gives Lukas a Derby contender

The Associated Pres

ARCADIA, Calif. — Consolidator was a record-setting winner of the $250,000 San Felipe Stakes on Saturday, giving trainer D. Wayne Lukas a top Kentucky Derby hopeful.

Derby preps Consolidator, fourth in the San Vicente in his last start at Santa Anita, was ready for this race. The colt owned by Bob and Beverly Lewis won the 1½s-mile race in 1:40.11 — a full second faster than the previous mark set by Pole Position in 1979. His 6½-length margin of victory over Giacomo also was a stakes record.

Wilko, the Breeders' Cup Juvenile winner, finished fourth in the eight-horse field, with Bob Baffert's Roman Ruler last in his first start since finishing fifth in the BC Juvenile on Oct. 30.

Consolidator will run next in either the Santa Anita Derby on April 9 or the Blue Grass Stakes at Lexington, Ky., a week later.

Consolidator, ridden by Rafael Bejarano, paid $16.40, $6.80 and $4.20.

Odds-on favorite Afleet Alex, with John Velazquez aboard for the first time, was in contention but fell way back and finished last in the six-horse field. His stable said he had a lung infection, but would be ready for his next start.

Rockport Harbor is trained by John Servis and ridden by Stewart Elliott, the same team that won the Derby and Preakness last year with Smarty Jones. Trained by Nick Zito, Sun King improved to 2-for-2 this year by seizing control of the 1<sup>1</sup>/16-mile race right from the start.

The winning time was 1.43.98, just off the track record of 1:43.40. Next stop for Sun King is the Blue Grass at Keeneland on April 16.

Gotham Stakes

Ziro's horse wins Gotham: At New York, Survivalist (88.90) lived up to his name and won the Gotham Stakes at Aqueduct, sweeping past the field in the final strides and withstanding a steward's inquiry.

Pavo, who finished second in a gallant effort, was disqualified to fourth after stewards ruled that the colt's jockey, Alan Garcia, inadvertently whipped Naughty New Yorker in the face during a wild stretch run. Garcia somehow managed to ride most of the race with his feet out of the stirrups.

Survivalist, Galloping Grocer and Naughty New Yorker are expected to run in the Wood Memorial on April 9, a final prep before the Kentucky Derby.

The winning time for the one-turn mile was 1:35.61.

U.S. men's soccer team tunes up vs. Honduras

ine Associatea Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Eddie Johnson keeps raising his price.

Johnson scored late in the first half for his seventh goal in six games with the national team, and the United States beat Honduras 1-0 Saturday in the Americans' final tuneup before next weekend's World Cup qualifier at Mexico.

Goalkeeper Kevin Hartman preserved the shutout when he smothered a kick from Wilmer Velasquez from in front of the goal in the 88th minute.

The United States, 3-0 this year, extended its unbeaten streak to 16 games since a 1-0 loss at the Netherlands on Feb. 18, 2004. The Americans are unbeaten in 31 games against teams in soccer's North and Central American and Caribbean region since a 2-0 loss at Costa Rica on Sept. 5, 2001.

But those runs could come to and end on March 27, when the Americans play at Mexico, where they are 0-21-1 and will face more than 100,000 hostile fans in the smog and altitude at Mexico City's Azteca Stadium.

The Americans, who won 2-1 last month at Trinidad and Tobago in their final-round opener, will spend the next week training in Colorado Springs, joined by their Europe-based players after this weekend's games.

"And on this team, he's going to take just about every big shot, if not every one. You've got to be willing to miss the big shot, and that's what Pat's willing to do." Carroll finished 10-for-18 from the floor and 4-for-9 three-point range. Center Dwayne Jones added 10 points, 16 rebounds and four blocks. Turner Battle led Buffalo (23-10) with 12 points. The Hawks (21-11) play Holy Cross in the second round on Monday night.

Buffalo, trailing by eight at the half, took its first lead late in the game, 38-37, and held a 42-40 advantage with just under four minutes left.

"When there was 3:56 left, we were saying, 'Look, we have four minutes left in the season if we don't get these stops on de-fense,' " Carroll said. "It kind of went through everybody else's mind, and we really buckled down on defense that last four minutes, which got us the win.'

Wichita State 84. Western Kentucky 81: At Wichita, Kan., Jamar Howard scored 22 points to lead Wichita State in the first-round game.

Paul Miller added 18 for the Shockers (22-9), while PJ Couis-nard scored 13 and Randy Burns had 12 Anthony Winchester had 25 for the Hilltoppers (22-9). Courtney Lee had 16, and Antonio Haynes added 15.

Wichita State forward Kyle Wilson and Western Kentucky center Elgrace Wilborn were involved in a shoving match with 3:55 to play in the first half. Wilborn was ejected from the game and Wilson was given a technical foul Davidson 82, SW Missouri State 71: At Springfield, Mo., Brendan Winters scored 22 points to lead Davidson in a first-round game. Winters was 6-for-8 from three-point range, and Jason Morton added 19 points for Davidson (23-8), which will play at Maryland on Wednesday night. Deke Thompson led Southwest Missouri (19-13) with 15 points, Anthony Shavies had 14 and Kellen Easley 13.

WORCESTER, Mass. - Julius Hodge shouted to his fans at the buzzer, saying he knew this would happen all along: North Carolina State was heading to the round of 16, and the defending champion was knocked out again

Hodge scored on a slashing drive through the lane with 43 seconds left to break a 62-all tie and send North Carolina State past second-seeded Connecticut 65-62 Sunday in the second round of the NCAA tournament.

North Carolina State (21-13). the 10th seed in the Syracuse Regional, advances to the regional semifinals for the first time since 1989 and will play the Bucknell-Wisconsin winner.

No team has repeated since Duke in 1992, but the defending national champion Huskies (23-8) seemed almost a lock to at least move past the second round They went into the game 27-0 against teams seeded sixth or lower in the tournament. And in 19 years under coach Jim Calhoun, they were 23-2 in the first two rounds of the tournament, reaching the regional semifinals

The loss also was a setback for the Big East conference, which has lost four teams so far, including a No. 2 seed and two No. 4 seeds

Hodge, who yelled, "I told you! I told you!" to Wolfpack fans after the buzzer sounded, was fouled by Ed Nelson on the deciding and completed the three-point play. When Marcus Williams' desperation three at the buzzer fell short, the Wolfpack had its biggest tournament victory in 16 years. Hodge finished with 17 noints and six assists. Cameron Bennerman had his second straight solid game with 15 points, Ilian Evtimov had 11 before fouling out with 2:16 left, and Andrew Brackman had 10 points.

Williams led the Huskies with 22 points and Charlie Villanueva had 16 points and 12 rebounds.

North Carolina 92, Iowa Sta 65: At Charlotte, N.C., Sean May and sixth man Marvin Williams bullied North Carolina back to the round of 16, leaving Iowa State's six-man rotation gasping for air

May had 24 points and 17 re-bounds and Williams finished with a career-high 15 rebounds for the top-seeded Tar Heels. Williams scored 20 po points, tying his season high for the sec ond consecutive game, and Rashad McCants added 17 for North Carolina (29-4), which hadn't survived the tournament's first weekend since advancing to the Final Four in 2000. The Tar Heels will face Villanova 76, Florida 65: At Nashville, Tenn., the fifth-seeded Wildcats, back in the NCAA tournament for the first time since 1999, got a huge performance from 6-foot-10 backup center Jason Fraser. With leading scorer Allan Ray struggling and another of Villanova's top players. Curtis Sumpter, sitting out much of the game with an injury, Fraser and guard Randy Fove literally took the team on their backs and led the Wildcats into the round of 16 for the first time since 1988.

Fraser had 21 points and 15 rebounds and Foye had 18 points to help pick up the slack for Ray and Sumpter, who left the game after scoring eight early points and twice tumbling to the court and clutching his sore knees.

Michigan St. ends Vermont dream Catamounts can't duplicate upset

The Associated Press

WORCESTER, Mass. - Maurice Ager scored 19 points and Paul Davis had 11 points and 14 rebounds on Sunday to lead Michigan State to a 72-61 victory over Vermont in the second round of the NCAA tournament

Michigan State advances to the Austin Regional semifinals and the Catamounts head back to the state that never expected them to get this far.

Largely ignored during the Big Ten season while Illinois took over the top of the national rankings, Michigan State (24-6) found itself the sentimental second choice again in Worcester after 13th-seeded Catamounts (25-7) beat Syracuse — the first NCAA tournament victory in Vermont history.

The crowd was heavily tilted to ward Vermont, and outgoing coach Tom Brennan's sense of humor won over many of the rest. But star Taylor Coppenrath went into a shooting slump, missing 18 of 23 shots, and Michigan State proved too fast in transition for the America East champion.

That gave Michigan State coach Tom Izzo a record of 21-6 of Syracuse as Spartans dominate in the tournament - a winning percentage (77.8) second among active coaches to Duke's Mike Krzyzewski (79.3) and set up the Spartans for a possible matchup with the Blue Devils in Austin.

Duke played Mississippi State later Sunday. Coppenrath, a three-time America East player of the year, had 16 points and 14 rebounds, but 10 of the boards were on offense and many of those came after his own

T.J. Sorrentine, who won the conference's ton award the other year, scored 26 points but made six of 15 shots from three-point range Sorrentine hit consecutive three-pointers to give Vermont a 6-2 lead and then scored the Cats last 10 points of the first half, but he could have used some help.

Sorrentine's layup gave Ver-mont a 28-27 lead with 2:57 left in the half, but Michigan State went on an 8-0 run before the break Davis made the first basket of the second half to make it 10 in a row and give the Spartans a 37-28

Michigan State led by as many as 14 points before Vermont made its last run, cutting it to 62-53 on Sorrentine's three-pointer with 4:39 left. But Davis made jumper and then Drew Navmick dunked to extend the lead to double digits and by the time Vermont closed within 10 again, there were just 73 seconds

In Saturday games:

Kentucky 69. Cincinnati 60: At Indianapolis, Second-seeded Kentucky (27-5) relied on three-point shooting to get started, then strong-armed the undersized Bearcats (25-8) inside and finally wore them down late. The bitterness between schools located about 90 miles apart has been fueled by the rarity with which they play. There have been just six games since 1948; Kentucky has won 15 straight in the series dating to 1939.

Kalenna Azubuike led Kentucky with 19 points and also had nine rebounds. Chuck Hayes finished with 10 points and eight rehounds and freshman Randolph Morris had 11 points and 12 rebounds. Another freshman, Rajon Rondo, added 16 points.

A crowd of 40,331 set the one-session record for an NCAA subregional site, breaking the previous mark of 39 940 set in Indianapolis in 1990.

The Utes (29-5) advanced to the regional semifinals for the first time since 1998, when they lost to Kentucky in the national championship game. They had been knocked out in the early rounds five of the last six years but move on to play Kentucky next in the Austin Regional.

Although the beefy Sooners (25-8) did their hest to heat un Bogut in the low post, they couldn't overcome 32 percent shooting. Except for hitting the first basket, they trailed the entire game and got no closer than seven points in the second half.

Wis.-Milwaukee strikes again another big finish

After second upset, Panthers head to Sweet 16 matchup with Illinois

CLEVELAND - Bruce Pearl's eyes welled up and his throat tightened the moment he heard Boston College's fight song. Nothing makes him cry quicker than "For Boston."

A few hours later. Wisconsin-Milwaukee's coach, who once stuffed himself inside BC's mascot suit for a game, clapped his hands to another sentimental tune - one without a title

"It's just called the UWM fight song," said a Milwaukee band member, showing the sheet

On Saturday, they were singing it from Madison to Menomonee

Joah Tucker scored 23 points. Ed McCants had 18 and Adrian Tigert 16 as the 12th-seeded Panthers sprung their second upset in three days, an 83-75 victory over Boston College in the second round Saturday

Given little chance in the opening round against Alabama from the Southeastern Conference or against the Big East's regular-season champion, Milwaukee (26-5) gave the nation's mid-major programs another moment to savor this March

"We're going to the Sweet 16," Tucker said after the Panthers pranced around the floor. "We've got a name to put on this win.'

They did it the way they know best: with a relentless, full-court press that confounded the Eagles (25-5), forcing them into 22 turn-- the most crucial one a pass that was thrown away with 1:21 remaining and BC down 76-75

"I thought we would handle it better," Eagles coach Al Skinner said. "They attacked us, stayed aggressive and didn't ston The Panthers who have won 11 straight and 19 of 20 weren't intimidated by some early trash talk from Boston College and overcame foul trouble in the second half to advance to next week's round of 16.

Milwaukee will play Illinois on Thursday in the Chicago Regional in Rosemont, Ill. The Panthers are the fifth No. 12 seed to advance to the final 16 since 1989 and the first since Butler, their Horizon league brethren, in 2003.

After the final seconds ticked off, Pearl, a BC grad and assistant at Chestnut Hill who landed a gig as eagle-for-the day in a 1981 tournament game, swung his 10-year-old daughter. Leah. around at midcourt.

Illinois 71. Nevada 59: At Indianapolis, James Augustine scored a career-high 23 points and Jack Ingram added 12 in the top-seeded Illini's victory. Augustine also had 10 rebounds, four blocked shots and two steals.

Illinois' famed guard trio of Deron Williams, Dee Brown and Luther Head combined for 31 points, but most came late in the game as the big guys took center stage. Williams scored five points on free throws down the stretch. The Illini (34-1) reached the regional semifinals for the second straight season and fourth time in the last five seasons. Kevinn Pinkney led the Wolf Pack (25-7) with 22 points and 11 rebounds. Mo Charlo added 12.

Arizona 85, UAB 63: At Boise, Idaho Salim Stoudamire made five three-pointers and had 28 points, and Arizona didn't buckle Alabama-Birmingham's constant pressure defense

Arizona (29-6) struggled with UAB's frenetic, trapping defense in the first half, but had only four turnovers in the second to reach the round of 16 for the 12th time

Washington shows why it's a No. 1 seed

The Associated Press

BOISE, Idaho - Washington is making it a lot harder to question its No. 1 seed in the Albuquerque Regional.

The Huskies advanced to the round of 16 for the first time since 1998 with a convincing 97-79 victory over Pacific on Saturday. Nate Robinson scored 18 of his 23 points in the second half, Bobby Jones scored 19 and Will Conroy had 10 assists for Washington (29-5).

Tre Simmons scored 15 for the Pac-10 champion Huskies, whose top seed was the most disputed among the four No. 1s. But Washington backed it up well against The Huskies never trailed and pulled away by going 19-for-31 (61 percent) from the field in the second half. They finished shooting 56.3 percent (36-for-64) for the game. Next up is the winner of Louisville-Georgia Tech in Thursday's regional semifinal.

Other than a brief push by eighth-seeded Pacific (27-4) midway through the second half, the Huskies dominated and answered their doubters after holding off Montana 88-77 in the open-with 17 points and 10 rebounds and Christian Maraker added 12 points for the Tigers, but the Swedish forward was shut out in the second half.

The Huskies made 11 of their first 16 shots in the second half and opened with a 13-4 run, which included four straight points after Pacific coach Bob Thomason was called for a technical for complaining that an offensive foul wasn't called on Simmons when he drove hard to the basket Simmons made both free throws and Jones, who was fouled after pulling down the rebound on Simmons' original layup, was 2-for-2 on his free throws to put the Huskies up 52-36.

The Huskies increased the lead to 17 before Pacific started to rally midway through the half. Yango missed an opportunity for three-point play, but Matt Kemper got the rebound off the missed free throw and put it back

After Robinson went 1-for-2 on two free throws with 9:16 remaining, Jasko Koraikic got the lead down to single digits with a three-pointer that made it 74-65. Pacific's fans had their first real to cut the margin to 73-62 opportunity to cheer.

Robinson quickly put an end to that with back-to-back field goals, and the Huskies coasted the rest

Gansey: Yet for W.Va.

The burden appeared to weigh on them in their 70-54 victory over Chattanooga on Thursday. Several players conceded they felt some opening-game jitters.

This time, they couldn't hold onto a 13-point halftime lead or hold off a team that has made its mark by knocking off Top 25 teams. West Virginia tore through the Big East tournament to reach the finals, developing a knack for big finishes.

None was bigger than this one. "I just hope we have a city when we get back to school." said Mountaineers guard J.D. Collins.

"It might get burned down." Gansey, who had about 300 friends and relatives in the stands, made a free throw that tied it at 77 with 21 seconds left in regulation.

He was just getting started. The frenetic pace stretched into overtime, with neither team ahead by more than a couple of baskets. It was tied at 93 when Wake Forest center Eric Williams blocked Johannes Herber's driving layup with 2 seconds to go at the end of the first overtime. Paul scored 10 points in the first overtime, helping Wake Forest keep up with Gansey, who had 10 in the first overtime and nine more in the second, capping a comeback that will live in West Virginia lore. 'We were down, it's the story of our season," said West Virginia coach John Beilein. "We didn't auit. They were in trouble at halftime, trailing 40-27 with no idea how to contain the Demon Deacons' punishing inside game. Williams finished with 23 points and 12 rebounds. Wake Forest extended its de-

W.Va. guard scores 19 of his 29 in OTs as Mountaineers oust Wake Forest

CLEVELAND - Former local prep star Mike Gansev spent his summer shooting baskets on Cleveland State's cozy court, picturing himself making a big shot in an NCAA tournament game.

Remarkably, he got the chance on the same court, and made the shot. Then another, and

Shooting at those familiar baskets, the junior guard scored a career-high 29 points — 19 of them in the two overtimes — and the Mountaineers sent No. 2 seed Wake Forest to another stunning second-round loss, 111-105 on Saturday night. West Virginia (23-10) will play Texas Tech next in the Albuquerque Regional, its deepest tournament run since it made the round of 16 in 1998. The Mountaineers have beaten seven Top 25 teams this season, a school record. The crowd at Cleveland State rooted Wisconsin-Milwaukee to an upset of Boston College in the first game, then reveled as Wake Forest (27-6) became the first ACC team knocked out of the tournament.

'This is just a dream come true," said Gansev, who went to a suburban high school and worked out this summer in Wolstein Center with his brother, Steve, a guard at Cleveland tate. "It's an unbelievable feeling." For Wake Forest as well. After one of its most promising seasons ended with another overtime loss — the Demon Deacons were 0-3 in OT this season — the players couldn't comprehend what had just happened.

"It was what? Three OTs? Two OTs? It was just a long game," said guard Chris Paul, who fouled out with 3:24 left in the second OT. "We got a little fatigued at the end, and Gansey kept making play after play after play."
High expectations accompanied the Demon

Deacons, who also lost in the second round as a No. 2 seed in 2003. They returned every scholarship player from last season, were ranked No. 1 in the country for two weeks and set a school record for wins in the NCAA open-
